Description

MAS Fellow is a designation that is intended to recognize eminent scientists, engineers, and technologists in the field of microanalysis of materials and related phenomena who have distinguished themselves through outstanding research and service to the microanalysis community. This includes, but is not limited to technique development, applications, theory development, and distinguished service to the society. Election as an MAS Fellow will be highly selective but should represent a broad cross-section of the MAS membership. They are elected by their peers.

- Current members of the MAS steering committee (or Fellows Committee, see below) are not eligible for nomination (except in the case of the class of “Inaugural Fellows”)

Rules

- Only one nomination of an individual at a time will be considered. If a subsequent nomination of an individual from a different Nominating Sponsor is submitted while there is an active nomination, the first nomination only will be considered while the first is still active unless the first Nominating Sponsor withdraws the first nomination in writing.
